An agreement to this effect was signed in Beijing on 19.06.2012 by Russian Ambassador Sergei Razov and representatives of China's southern administrative district. This law will take in force after implementation (several months).

Macau passport holders will be allowed to enter Russia for a period of up to 30 days without a visa.

Russia has visa-free agreements with approx. 100 states include Hong Kong, Brazil, Chile, Argentina, Israel, Turkey, Serbia and almost all CIS countries.

And, in practice, there is no mandate migration registration of foreigners in Russia now. All fines and another punishments of foreigners for registration's absence were cancelled on March 2011.

Foreign tourists can walk in Russia freely, exclude frontier zones along all borders (except Belorussian border) - easy special permit needed; 19 special closed zones for foreigners - visiting is almost impossible; and 42 closed atomic and missile cities (most of them are in Siberia) - visiting is almost impossible.
